Ernest J. T. Martin, (1927-2015), a museum-exhibited fine artist whose work was internationally awarded, started his art career early with his first solo exhibition in 1934, at the age of seven.

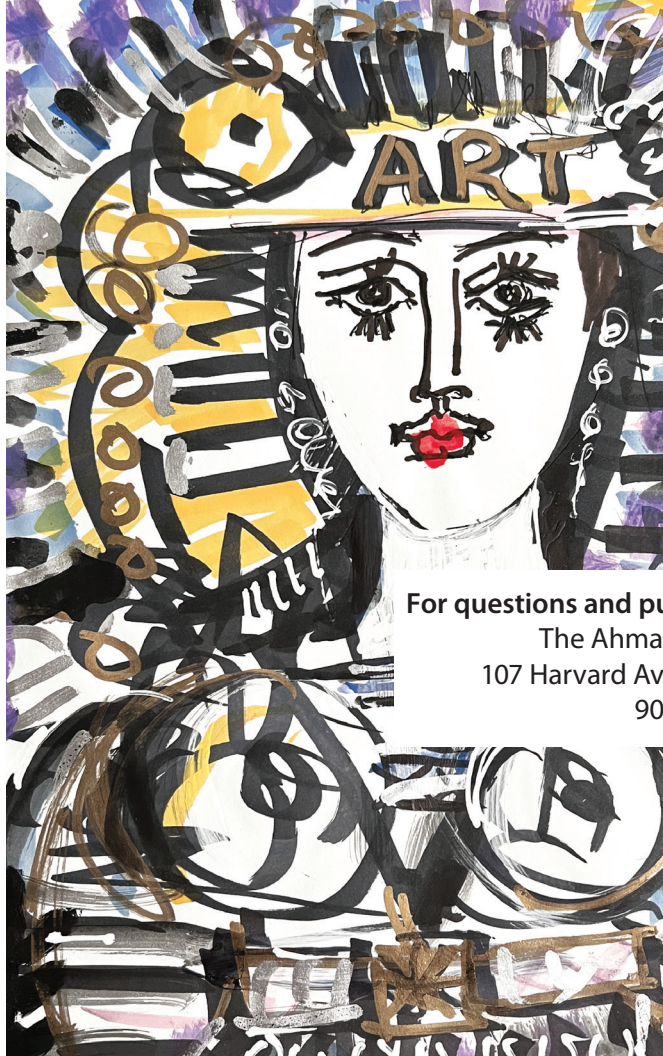

Ernest Martin became a professional matador in Mexico, France, and Spain, after serving in WW II, and attending the Art Students League in New York.

In France, he lived with, and painted with, Pablo Picasso, who set up an exhibition for him at the Musée des Beaux-Arts in Nimes, France.

Ernest was also a published author and poet, a patented inventor, a martial artist, a jewelry designer, a lecturer, and a friend of many celebrated artists.

He painted daily for over 81 years.
